DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-57 are presented for examination.

Election/Restrictions

2. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 1-15, are drawn to “transferring data using a data communication by performing operations for streaming data from computer to computer”, classified in class 709, subclass 231.
  - II. Claims 16-21, 52, 53, 54, are drawn to “an implementation of an application server using the application server specific supported functionality for scheduled sequence of task to be processed”, classified in class 718, subclass 103.
  - III. Claims 22-30, 55, 56, 57, are drawn to “an implementation of an streaming server using the streaming server specific supported functionality for allocating resources to handle the processing of the data”, classified in class 718, subclass 104.
  - IV. Claims 31 and 32, are drawn to “selectively sending files from multiple servers based on the determination of what contents are present on the servers”, classified in class 709, subclass 248.
  - V. Claims 33-36, are drawn to “purging files received from a server using specific algorithms”, classified in class 707, subclass 206.
  - VI. Claims 37 and 38, are drawn to “selectively transferring files from one server to another server”, classified in class 709, subclass 232.

Art Unit: 2154

- VII. Claims 39-42, are drawn to “buffering data in a communication system based on specific buffering needs”, classified in class 710, subclass 52.
- VIII. Claim 43-50, is drawn to “a data communication system for sending data to a client apparatus”, classified in class 709, subclass 203.
- IX. Claim 51, is drawn to “a data communication system having individual separated component objects for handling data”, classified in class 719, subclass 316.

3. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons: Inventions I to IX are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention I has separate utility such as transferring data using a data communication by performing operations for streaming data from computer to computer, lacking one or more of the particulars of inventions II to IX. Invention II has separate utility such as an implementation of an application server using the application server specific supported functionality for scheduled sequence of task to be processed, lacking one or more of the particulars of inventions of I and III to IX. Invention III has separate utility such as an implementation of an streaming server using the streaming server specific supported functionality for allocating resources to handle the processing of the data, one or more of the particulars of inventions of I, II and IV to IX. Invention IV has separate utility such as selectively sending files from multiple servers based on the determination of what contents are present on the servers, one or more of the particulars of inventions of I, II, III and V to IX. Invention V has separate utility such as purging files received from a server using specific algorithms, one or more of the particulars of inventions of I to IV and VI to IX. Invention VI has separate utility such as selectively transferring files from one server to another server, one or more of the particulars of inventions of I to V and VII to IX. Invention VII has separate utility such as buffering data in a communication system based on specific buffering needs, one or more of the particulars of inventions of I to VI, VIII and IX. Invention VIII has separate utility such as a data communication system for sending data to a client apparatus, one or more of the particulars of inventions of I to VII and IX. Invention IX has separate utility such as a data communication system having individual separated component objects for handling data, one or more of the particulars of inventions of I to VIII. See MPEP 806.05(d).

4. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

5. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the extensive search required for one group is not required for the other groups, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

6. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Art Unit: 2154

7. A telephone call was made to William Lewis on August 12, 2004 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement. William Lewis made no election over the phone.

8. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

9. A shortened statutory period for response to this action is set to expire 0 (zero) months and 30 (thirty) days from the mail date of this letter. Failure to respond within the period for response will result in ABANDONMENT of the application (see 35 U.S.C. 133, MPEP 710.02, 710.02(b)).
